

HONORS ARE EASY.

The Washingtons Have It All Their Own Way
With the Columbus Nine.

But Succumb to the Cincinnati in an Eleven-Inning Game.

The Columbus sluggers were badly beaten by the Washingtons yesterday morning. The visitors were fatigued from their long trip and were not in good form, while the home club had out the best nine in all positions and played a splendid game at the bat and in the field. The Columbus boys won the toss and went to the field with Dundon, their deaf mute pitcher, and Kemmer, catching, as their battery. The first inning gave the home club five unearned runs; only one hit—a three base by Prince—being made. Nearly all hands in the visiting nine took a turn at mudding and wild throwing. Brown and Carroll dropping easy fly balls. In the same inning Brown made a home run on a long ground hit along the right field foul line. It was their last and only run, for with their long lead to give them confidence the home nine settled down and played an invincible game. Hamill having the heavy hitters of the Columbus nine at his mercy and being nobly backed up by his field.

The home nine secured an unearned run in the fifth inning but in the eighth they earned four runs by as pretty an exhibition of good safe hitting as was ever seen on a ball field. Morgan played a fine game in left, taking in six long-hit balls, and Fennelly, at short, made some mighty stops and throws. They also did good for the visitors. Prince did finely on first, his pick up of a loose throw from Fennelly being first class. Humphries' error was due to the sun shining in his eyes as he essayed to capture a foul ball. Altogether it was a game for the boys to be proud of.

Gus Schmidl, the manager of the Columbus club, is a well known printer, and to his fine executive ability is attributed the position that club now holds in the American association. His many friends in this and other cities are glad to see the improvement that out-door exercise has made in Gus's health.

The afternoon contest between Washington and Cincinnati was witnessed by 3,500 spectators, and was stoutly fought and exciting from the finish. It took eleven innings to decide the victory, the visitors playing the best staying, fielding and batting just a little the best at the end, moreover having all the close and controversial decisions of the umpire in their favor. The players of the season thus far doesn't argue very well for the professional umpire system. Washington could not have fared worse under the old happy-go-lucky plan. Brennan alone has evinced any fitness for the position.

The Buckeyes were first at the bat and scored one run on Fennelly's fumble off Jones's hard hit and McPhee's single.

The Washingtons in their turn went for the pitcher right and left, earning three runs on Fennelly's beautiful hit to the fence for three bases, and singles by Humphries, Hawkes, and Morgan.

The next four innings were quickly played, yielding no runs for either side, McPhee making a brilliant double play in the fourth, and the catchers making very nearly between bases in the same inning. In the sixth they took Barr's measure for the first time, Wolf, Riley, and McPhee making safe hits and tying the score, with two earned runs. In the next the home club again went to the front, with two runs of a three-hitter by Fennelly, a single by Hawkes, assisted by a passed ball and wild pitch. From this out they could do nothing against Deagle and the sharp fielding of his support. The western boys added an earned run in the eighth on Riley's fine two-base, and a safe hit by Fulmer. Mansell hit well for his base in the ninth, went to second on a passed ball, and scored on Jones's hard grounder to right field. The score was now 4-4, and the much excitement the tenth inning was played without either side gaining the desired run. Price, however, easily cut on the forehead by a ball and satisfied Humphries taking his place, and Yewell going to right field. Everybody held his breath as "Irish" Mansell came to the bat in the eleventh and sent a hot one to Fennelly, which the latter stopped well, but threw low, and Tom claimed first. Barr caught him between bases, but a bad throw by Humphries saved him again, to make second on Jones's base on balls, third on a sacrifice hit by Wolf, and home on a passed ball with the winning run, as the home boys were put out in short order.

Trumbull, Hawkes, and Prince earned fielding honors, and McPhee played a wonderful base. Fennelly, Mansell, and McPhee excelled at the bat.

If ex-Senator Dorsey attends the Chicago convention an effort will be made to serve a subpoena upon him, requiring him to appear before the committee and give testimony.

But Another Preacher Installs that He is Only a Thief.

Noah U. Mitchell, colored, claiming to be a minister of the gospel, was in the police court yesterday morning, charged with stealing a value from Rev. James Z. Lovelace, a Methodist minister from Alabama.

Mr. Lovelace stated that he was returning to Alabama from the recent Methodist conference at Philadelphia, and had his valise and umbrella sitting in front of him in the Baltimore and Ohio depot Thursday night, and when he looked around for it he discovered that it was missing, and found it in the possession of the prisoner and had him arrested. The prisoner stated that he was a delegate to the Chicago convention, and was looking out for the baggage of some millionaires who were along with him.

The prisoner took the stand and denied the charge of larceny. He raised up on his toes and proclaimed in a loud voice that he was a minister of the gospel and general agent of the colored educational association. He said that those gentlemen had sent him to look out for their baggage and left, and not returning, he took charge of it. The case was continued for the evidence of the baggage master.
